After earning both my undergraduate and master's degrees while playing football at SMU, I went on to play professionally in the NFL before transitioning into commercial real estate. That experience taught me discipline, teamwork, and leadership — qualities I now apply to helping businesses find locations that strengthen the local economy. In real estate, I work closely with property owners, tenants, and developers, giving me firsthand insight into the factors that drive business growth and community development. I'm passionate about helping Mesquite continue to expand in ways that benefit residents and local entrepreneurs.
